Dear Ehud and Nili,

I hope you are both well. We look forward to having you both in our office tomorrow. In anticipation of your visit, I wanted to give you an idea of how we anticipate the meeting will unfold:

Dana will meet you both in the lobby and escort you to the 21st floor. There, Ellen and I will welcome the opportunity to spend a few minutes with you.

While the three of us spend some time discussing where we are, we will assemble the agents and marketing team in our conference room on a different floor. When everyone is settled in and ready, Ellen and I will bring you both down. There will be about 25 people in the room, about 20 in-person and four or five remotely via video conference.

The people in the room have already had many hundreds of conversations with potential hosting organizations all around the world about Ehud and will continue to do so, and we want to make sure they have the most relevant, up-to-date and thorough information about what you've been thinking and what you want to share with audiences around the world.

After that, if you have time to answer a few questions, that would be wonderful.

I imagine the whole meeting will take about 45 min.

Please let me know if you have any question.

Warm regards,

Don
